離別恨

今朝夢醒淚滿懷， 辛酸苦樂情難返。
人生幾得何時在？ 撥開青天見星明。 愛恨交織在香江， 但願玉人求真意。 試問誰留傷心地？ 遊子後會在無期。

書於丁巳年正月十五（77年3月4日）

遊海洋公園

身在海洋館， 只見人頭湧。 吊車夠新穎， 餐室真貴貴。
海豚躍迷人， 海獅第一流。 生在地球上， 應認識海洋。

書於丁巳年正月十八日（77年3月7日）

3. 游大潭

藍天白雲山湖色， 鴉雀聲音遍自然。
風盡野草無是處， 俯首眺望無氣門。 幽徑秋林枯葉地，
閃爍生輝滿塘銀。 水流潺潺古典樂，
~~一洗塵塵繁華夢。~~恬靜迷人全陽中。

4.

The wind blows through the long-blade grass
The wind blows through the long-blade grass;
like splashing water from afar.
Sweet grass, yellow grass;
on the earth so far.
I walk through the fallen leaves;
with sounds of pop-corn in movie show.
My old yellow, crimson leaves;
on them I lay my very soul.

22nd February

The forlorn beach

I take a stroll by the forlorn beach;
enjoying the cool evening breeze.
A lonesome seagull catches my eyes;
shrinking desperately in his cry.

I sit on the undulating sand;
witnessing the exquisite sunset.
With folded arms and thinking deep;
pining for the one I need.

12th April, 1976.

The Stellar Lamentation

The leaves rustle on the sycamore trees;
swaying gracefully in the evening breeze.
The Sun sinks gloriously in effulgent hues;
touching the ocean with her last kiss.
Under the exquisite earthshine I will feast;
a sublime feeling overwhelms my cup of life.
The sky is resplendent with stars in peace;
after the lonesome foggy nights cease.

Oh! Myriads of star-dusts in the Milky Way;

shine with heavenly grace.
How I rejoice with you!
With your charming smile and your superb style!
So pure and chaste;
a pleasure to my mind.
Living under the starry nights,
with a feeling sublines,
a bliss I find!
In desert you will be my guide,
in chaos you will be my heart,
in peace you will be my life!

Oh! Stars, stars of love and hope,
spangle pellucidly in my soul;
where I quest and endeavour,
under the celestial fire;

illuminating my murky road.

Within your wondrous whole,

I live and grow:

striving for my ideals.

Yet my life is lackadaisical;

in my lonesome journey towards my goals,

plaintive for communion and warmth,

to enhance my zest for life;
and to keep up my quest for Truth.

There lies the beauteous reflection of the Milky Way;
the image of which sparkles dreamily,
on the undulating water.

How I long to touch you!

Whenever I find myself in despair;
you furnish me with hope and peace,
in your starry eyes;
fills my bounded mind.

22nd April, 1976.

7. Affection

In my little selfish world;
with a noble feeling that sublines;
pure, sincere and always true;
through which ever melts my heart.

For Truth and happiness it pursues;
blazing fiery in my soul.

Of faith and hope and my beauteous star;
Devoted to your ultimate good.

10th April, 1976.

8 Epistle to a Lady Lady,
anticipate always,
your beatific days;
and your fervent way.

Forget! Forget the sombre yesterday;
and you will never be frustrated.
May candidness and aspires be with you always for you my heart and soul fascinated.
Your lips like strawberries in Paradise;
your neck like swans in River Rhine.
As lovely as the asteriated emeries;
as fragrant as the flowers and fruits of Myrtus
communis;
as glamorous as the quasi-stellar radio source from afar
as superb as the fabulous domain of Modern Art.

Strive! Strive for your ideals;
and your endeavour never be abused.
May your goals always be acquired;
for you my thoughts and mind invited.
Sedates in your singeneris style;

exalts in your lofty mind.
Like star-dusts in the Milky Way;
like sunflowers in gaudy days;
like an oasis in desert,
like the most precious human treasure.

Feel! Feel all beatific matters,
and your zeal for quest of Truth never totters.
May you and beatitude are in unison;
for you I always have my orisons.
Effulges with your ethereal pride;
sparkles in your sublime eyes.
Like diamonds in the mist;
like Phoenix from the East;
like the sweetest rose bud in Spring;
like the grandiose virgin flower in rain.

Perceive! Perceive the Universe around you,
and your zest for life never yields.
May your life be brilliant and consummate;
to you I always consecrate.
Your brow so delicate and mannered;
your voice so soft and tender.

As pure as the snow on the Martian Pole;
as elegant as the morning dew on rose;
as penetrating as the Rosette Nebula in Monoceros
as sacred as the galaxies in Coma Berenices

So, Lady,
anticipate always,
your beatific days,
and your fanned way.

9. Aurora

Dawn comes,
since on the run.
What a rapture!
for those captured,
by the shroud of night,
to see the first light.

Moving her ruddy lips,
the shy twilight lady peeps,
with her blithe eyes,
consenting the day will be fine.
Out of the horizon she gleams,

the constellation Orion she dims.

Attired in her silvery gray robes,
she greets the yawning Earth with a blush,
conferring fervour of dawn to all,
from her benediction of concord.
cherishing the land with her divine balm, culminates in her golden realm.

Dawn!

Yes, dawn!

and the refuls rising Sun in morn,
birds singing their songs,
but always recall,
it is darkest before dawn.

12th May, 1976.

10.

Dragonfly

Dragonfly, dragonfly, flying so high.

You must be tired,
perching on the wire.

Flapping your filamentary wings, following the morning wind.
Your body so slender and thin,
your effort so keen!

11. The sea-farer's Dream (Epilogue of the Seafarer) Flow, flow, flow,
away from the hell of dole;
to the realm of rose.
Though his zest is cold;
and his paddles are old,
he fights as long as he can hold.

show, show, show,
show his whole;
though hope is low.
The seafarer is bold;
to have his heart told;
and his secrets unfolded.

Row, Row, Row,
row the fairy boat;

to the land of gold!
and pursue the star of Pole,
with all his soul,
as far as man knows!

Ode to Deep-sky splendours - galaxies, clusters & nebulae.
Myriads of galaxies;
burn my secular eyes with ecstasy.
Fluoresce in their celestial clans;
with their countless astral lamps.

Alas! What a regret!
For those galaxies imbed,
in the 2.7K background microwave radiation,
during their lonesome aviation,
receding from each other with speeds of amaze;
into the eternal void of space.
Spiral, barred-spiral, elliptical, irregular - all in a gush;
abiding their ad infinitum pilgrim of dusk.

Adieu! To the fair island-universes;
under which I compose my verses,

in their dainty silky gown;
of their merry stately born.
Globular clusters sparkle with their red giants;
Circumnavigate the nuclei of galaxies in rhythm.
Galactic clusters deluge with Population I stars;
pouring out electromagnetic waves from afar.

Emission nebulae in spiral arms,
gleams with firmamental charms.
To all these my soul exalts,
& leave my heart with joy.

20th May, 1976

13. Anticipation

The firmament laments for the sombre clime;
shedding raindrops in her cry.
The wind sobs grievously through the vale;
muttering her lugubrious tale.
The sea blubbers in her call;
breaking waves onto the shore.
There sits a man, anticipating, beside the window,
for a lady he dwindles.

'May I be a turtle-dove;
and cherish thine life with unrequited love.
May I inundate thee with lofty zest;
regardless of my wretched tears.
May I imbue thine soul with sanguineous faith;
though diffidence and waning are in my face.
May I always have thee as treasure;
though without thine nurture.

To give without receipt;
to say without deceit;
to strive without conceit;
without thee can I achieve?

The august sinking Sun in haze;
the exquisite earthshine of Moon in first phase;
the astral heaven that Homer sings in praise;
without thee can I taste?

14. And there sit I (composed during a Physics period)
And there sit I;
downhearted and tired.
Oh! Who cares for flux or induction;

or something like conduction.
Symbols, formulae, equations all mixed up;
like beer and 7-up in a mug!
Mathematical Physics, man's first mistake - Damn!
Let the Devil take them.

15. The Delirium (an erotic poem)

No cars, no planes;
no rock and roll music, no trams.
No hustle bustle of town;
only serenity exists.
Only tacit understanding conveyed;
only love can diffuse.
We are kneeling, face to face;
beside the hearth.
Hush reigns, I can feel her breath.
Each at the other's best.
Our hearts throb; our bodies nude.
Lambent glances, amorous stares;
as refreshing as desserts of summer rain.
We quiver. The sultry blaze of passions.
The rufous flame of fireplace.

Heart-throb! She droops her Venusian head;
The shyness of my virgin belle.

The electricity between us

Heart-throb! She droops her Venusian head;
she blushes - like a rosy bud; like a ripe apple;
my virgin flower.

Her doll-face, her sweet voice, her ivory neck;
she is but my Goddess!

Her apple-pie mouth; her lips of strawberries; her snowy teeth.

Nature's handiwork; my hallowed treasure!

I draw closer; her enticing breath,
suffused with ethereal bouquet.

Her metabolism, her blood, her fluids,
her every cell, every feminine molecule.

Her unique! Her Everything! Her complete!

Traces of joyful tears in her starry orbs;
vehement appeal to her emotions. (Her ^{conquering} eyelashes; ^{her} ~~electric~~ ^{electric} eyelashes)

Her succulent flesh; her individuality;
her blackberries' hair; her curly soft hair.

My pupils dilate. What a rapture to my eyes!
Her beautiful, undulating breasts and lips; her crimson-pink mammary gems.

Palm to palm; we touch; we clasp;
her eyes wide with admiration;

2B/ 2A

her breath's fast with love.
We caress; we kiss; our lips glue together.
I kiss her eyes, her temple, her face, her ears.
I smack her neck, her breasts, her everywhere.
I set off my jaunt over her;
in heavy slow pace.
I devour every bit along my way.
She moans; but with the sweetest tone.
I pet her vaginal orifice tenderly; she reacts, shyly.
Every nerve cell of us reacts;
every atom in us yearns - to possess and to be possessed.
I suck her mammary gems softly.
With love and mutual ecstasy;
I exercise my erectile muscles.

I am as high as Mount Everest;
Honeymoon night with phallic caisson of love.
With delicious pleasure; with our breaths in one,
the wildest joy communing; my rocket launches,
beyond human bondage; beyond the abyss of loneliness.
Our bodies in total contact; our personalities united.
She beseeches passionately; my rocket decelerates.
We embrace tremulously; our breaths are heavy.

Consummation in the

We melt; we penetrate each other, we fuse - our souls, ^{in bodies}
Violent tempest; delicious pressure; masculine friction.
Union of egos; from formament to inferno.
Gush of seminal milk inundates her.
Offerings of hymen are burnt;
on the altar of Eros.
Our first night will never end,
Consummate Exaltation! My babe lamb.

6. On smoke emanating from an anti-mosquito coil - Whirl and whirl;
they surge like tornadoes -
sometimes in a curly solitary ribbon;
emanating from the glowing ingredients.
Sometimes they generate weird surfaces;
expanding and adjusting to the slightest draughts.
Bent and twisted, they drift like ghosts;
impregnate every chunk of space;
travelling in manifold of waves.
They somersault along their ways;
with ethereal grace,
Scattered with nodules; whirling fanatically,

Needless to say, they all suffer;
from a loss of unity;
a loss of firmness and solidity;
but an increase in entropy.

17. Ruth Amor

Much had I explored on the vault of sky;
with Aquarius and Polaris as my guide.

The sovereignty of Cosmos I yearned for;
~~where~~ ethereal bells of bliss would chime all.

Once had I perceived the world through indefatigable eyes;
for which Aphrodite and Astraea in my mind.

The ecstasy of life I blazed with;
while temporal brooks of anguish congealed then.

Now, in the weird obdurate phantasy I dwell;
all silent and dead - only Absolute Darkness reigns.

Not even a trace of solacing light can spring;
nor senses of direction, nor flowing of streams.

Neither there are resplendent starry nights in Trojan fringe;
no laughter, no delight. No familiar shapes, no living creatures.
My earnest quest, my fervour, my life - all rupture;

all fallen, to the tempest of desperation! All melt.....

For what? Nothingness but nothingness is mine;
no even Hope of the Pandora's Box! No space, no time.
Boisterous whirlwind blows; I slunk my stars of Pole in vain,
but all in vain! I shiver without any feint.
Fortitude, I have! I can tolerate! I can endure;
until starlight and roses subside.

I can be egotistic and numb; a fiddle?
Ideals? Affection! Oh, no! Never! They dwindle!

Who said I had never cherished the world?
Once, twice, thrice..... I faltered; I did not jade.
Save of Polaris; I was led to serenity. I poured myself
I proffered my best; I gave, even my most precious without reserve, I asked for no requital;
for some time, misery and woe were mere hallucinations.
With that vehement tie of joy; with that guide-star;
my ocean of life was dazzled with silvery gems.

Those were my jovial days; they all faded; withered with age.
I flounder alone in my degenerate course—in violent windstorm.
I am spurned and discarded, yet, I need no compassion.

In the fathomless abyss I drift, with neither feelings nor passions.

My ecstasy of life, like fog-bow on the breaking waves;

transient but beautiful; like setting-sun in haze.

Oh! Affection and ideals. What can you bring?

Happiness or the very chagrin to live?

Yearning

In the joyous days of May;
and Time gets on her own way.

Living creatures revive their strength,
flourish under the mead of spring.

Flowers blossom in their sweet fragrance;
discharging their exquisite pattern.

Birds sing melodiously in a bliss;
endowing the Earth with their bleat.

Yet there sits the man of no morrow;
brooding over his sorrow.

His senses are numb;
inebriated by the gall mine of woe.

His mind is perplexed;
enshrouded by the mystic mist of rue.
His heart is aching;
choked by the ineffable thorns of misery.
His cheeks are wanning;
languished by the acrid tempest of agony.
Despite his toil and perspiration,
he is disjoined into infernal desperation.

Lady, you ought to be supercilious,
a man always strives for your happiness,
always wants to cherish your life.
Deep in his soul he pines,
for your love and grace,
in his long insomniac nights and days.
Lady, you know,
you have brought a proud heart down.

Nature.

When I am in the cradle of Nature,
a fiery rapturous ecstasy bursts from me.
With the sweet refreshing fragrance of blossoming flowers,

In and the mellow rhythm of the waterfalls,
She depicts Her exquisite Palchitude to all mankind.
The lovely dewy bow on the virgin grass,
matched with the gaudy morning sky,
manifests Her Truth resplendently.
The heavenly streaks of golden sunbeams,
from the rising Sun,
shine with celestial elegance,
kindling the ever-burning fire of human curiosity.
18. With the dark, solemn mountains, silhouetted against the graceful setting Moon,
Nature declares Her profound motto to all.
For the quest of Beatitude, Truth, Palchitude & Humanity.

20. Footprints on the sand,
Footprints on the sand,
some shallow, some deep,
into the sea they dip,
lost in the fancy land.

Tracks of human pace,
withered with the waves,

Happiness on my face,
shrivelled with the days.

The sky above does fade;
submits itself to Fate.
For I cannot live;
without the Sun's gift.

21. 'The miracle of Joint School Functions'
- a speech given by the Joint School Chairman

'In the name of power, vanity and hypocrisy, I, the chairman of the Joint School Function, endeavour to seek for the injustice of the member schools with the sacrifice of the rights of them. Although there is a constant dissent of opinions and views, I always adopt or act according to my sole benefits which are surely the benefits and purpose of the Joint School Function. Really, I exalt in my god-like position, honoured by everyone. In fact, the Preparation Committee is but a miniature authoritarian nation.

I We should maintain our stability and prosperity by all means - even by the sacrifice of personal freedom and democracy with the practices of hypocrisy and selfishness. For the quest of hideousness, pain, falsity and humanity, I declare the commencement of the Joint School Function. So, let God help us!

'Hey! Slap your hands! Kids!'

Come

Come, drink from my cup of zeal;
and our earnestness never be ceased.

Come, eat my bread of bliss;
and our sorrow will be least.

Come, share my fountain of zeal;
and our lives never be missed.

Come, live with my heart of grit;
and our misery will freeze.

Rhapsody of Summer

Summer days! Oh! Summer days,
 How I envy of you!
 of your capricious tempers;
 and your vivacious manner,
 The fruits of sunshine you bear;
 the desserts of summer rain you rear.
 On the rumble of thunderbolts you flourish;
 the living kingdoms on Earth you nourish.
 Jubilates in your embracing flames;
 exults in your nostalgic parts.
 For you crickets and frogs chirp;
 and the grains of felicity we reap.

Summer nights! Oh! Summer nights!

How you impregnate me;
 in your serene chamber;
 and your tacit emblem.

Breeze of fragrance from blooming flowers;
 mystic voice from gauzy clouds.

To the realm where Eros and Astrae dwell;
 for noble hearts you melt.

Transcends in your vineyard of gallantry;
 sublimates in your romance of chimney.

9. From tumult to rampage;
7. from nadir to zenith.

22. We will watch the Summer Triangle together;
2. enjoying the tranquil bliss forever.

10. Across the Milky Way;
4. where Altair and Vega lay.

18. We will sit on the dewy lawn in the garden;

2. We will have our pilgrimage of life in union;

24. Side to Saturn

Search!

And there she is!

drifting with the stars;
effulges in her luster,
in the constellation Gemini.
The vault of heaven is sprinkling with star-dust;
the atmosphere is steady and diaphanous.

Seek!

In the telescope,
the picturesque Saturn reveals;
in my earthly eye,
with the Gmm eyepiece,
shining blissfully,
of her unique peaceful style,
in her Golden Age.
Cassini Division is beautifully separated,
between Ring A and B.
The delicate crepe ring irradiates subtly,
in its brownish tint.

Look!

in the disc,
the elegant gradation of colours,
from light yellow to sordid,

and the well-defined shadow of the rings.
Oh! Saturn, the planet of beauty, thou fillest me with aesthetic pleasure.

A page of handwriting practice on lined paper. The page is filled with a dense grid of cursive letters, primarily 'A' and 'y', written in blue ink. The letters are slanted and connected, showing various forms of the characters. The practice is organized into rows and columns, with some letters appearing as 'A' and others as 'y'. The handwriting is fluid and consistent, demonstrating the technique of slanted cursive.

VI Philosophy & thinking processes

Human beings are continuous with Nature, in fact, are part of Nature. All our knowledge is derived from the interactions between us & our Universe. We know that we are made of atoms & our atoms obey the quantum mechanics. If we explain our thinking processes, our actions & our consciousness in terms of quantum mechanics. Then our ^{all mental & emotional} senses depend on the principle of quantum mechanics but their knowledge of quantum mechanics is derived from our senses. So it true that our knowledge is conditional by senses. Perhaps too idealist in tone. Our senses also depend on our external world. They are inseparable & part of the Universe. Mutual interaction between human beings & the external world? As conditions in our external world changes, our senses will detect them. As our senses vary, we may perceive new things. For the uncertainty principle we can predict only with limited tolerance.

Human instincts as evolved - love, selfishness, curiosity :- as seen in mammals (far less adapted to the environment), spiritual love dominates in human beings.

^{Emotion} ~~consciousness~~ is related mammals. Yet human being can only escape from being locked in space & time. Animals change little for they are well-adapted to their environment.

Taboo of sex in Christianity

1. the role of sex in Christianity
2. Practices
3. bad consequence

Sexual ecstasy is a taboo of Christianity. It is argued that sex is an instrument for procreation only. To enjoy sexual activity, for men and women, is a sin. Instinctive satisfaction is regarded as a manifestation of profanity & ~~debasement~~. Christian Orthodoxy was pre-occupied with the lust for sex. Christ was held to be born through a virgin. Father & brothers are not permitted to marry, for sex is a dirty business. To approach God, they held, should consist in celibacy & chastity. They claimed to see hallucinations & visions. To me, Father & Brothers are not so pious as ~~them~~ ^{their} images. (e.g. Brother Abban) They drink, they smoke. Repressed sexual desire will give rise to psychological disorders. Social aspects of sex taboo:- anti-contraception & anti-abortion - population increase will cause an increase in world problems which the church claimed to help to solve then. Actually, it is creating it & makes it worse than ever.

Dogmas are instilled into the young mind when ~~encountered~~

They seem to ignore the humanistic aspect of sexuality. Sexuality is really an expression of spiritual love. In fact, carnal love & spiritual love are inseparable. The world cannot use a sexual ~~contact~~ ^{union} in a widest sense. ~~Physical contact~~ ^{union} is the first expression of love when you meet the first with, say, a dog or a dolphin (or mammals), you have to touch it, pet it. The clergyman held that pleasure is evil. They look for transcendent pleasure - a heaven where immortality & happiness persists. Yet they are led to the abyss of power & vanity which may be the substance of sex. The clergymen like drinking for it brings about a moment of ecstasy when inhibited & smothering (a phallic symbol) must clarify my stand. I do not propose promiscuity as sexuality is an expression of love, sex without love is undesirable.

The prohibition of sex during childhood or adolescence may lead to extreme consequences.
e.g. the strict Puritanism in U.S.A. may be an important factor in the excess liberation of sex. The sexual revolution began in 1953 in U.S.A. Puritanism was influential before 1953. S-M scenes

I suspect that if the restraint of sex is suddenly removed from a society, sexual aberrations will be common. The restraint of sex also depresses people to the string of power, i.e., the search for pleasure in terms of power. The yearning to subjugate, selfishness, hate, religious feelings. Hypocrisy was necessary.

Moral concepts are inculcated & forced into the minds of the young (from birth to adolescence). Under the strict ~~Christian~~ Orthodox, the grown-up child or adult was faced with a dilemma in 1953, the beginning of the social revolution which involves a great conflict of traditions & ideas. Hypocrisy of the past generation was felt deeply.

Education - its modes, systems + programs (from 12-19)

Education, in a general sense, is a process of acquiring knowledge and experience of the environment.

Aims of Education

1. Individual purpose:
 - a. to gain a perspective of the Universe
 - b. to promote thinking + determination
2. Social purpose:
 - a. to contribute to society
 - b. to promote social welfare

Sexual pleasure is the greatest of all human passions. Much of the human bliss depends on this. During our history of evolution concepts & edifices change, but this instinct remains quite primitive. Sexual gratification gives so much impulse to human beings that repression will cause psychological disorders.

Sexual reproduction is a necessary condition (but not sufficient) condition for our cultural & biological evolution. It produces varieties. It's a strange fact that human beings are not so adapted to environment. In fact, they are not adapted to environment. In order to survive, man must think, must imagine & must work. Otherwise, our species will not exist. If human beings are adapted to environment, evolution will virtually stop, & will be locked both in space & time.

Nature grants us sexual ecstasy so as to propagate the species. These sagacious

Message to a star (1958 - 1977)

That's a long long time. That's a short short story. I started to write this message - last year (1976) - during the Summer Holidays. Then, I put off my writing for a year due to unclassified, unknown and untold reasons. After matriculation, I worked on this message again. I hope I can record my life history during my childhood, adolescence and early youthhood as far as I can remember, together with my development of perspectives and concepts.

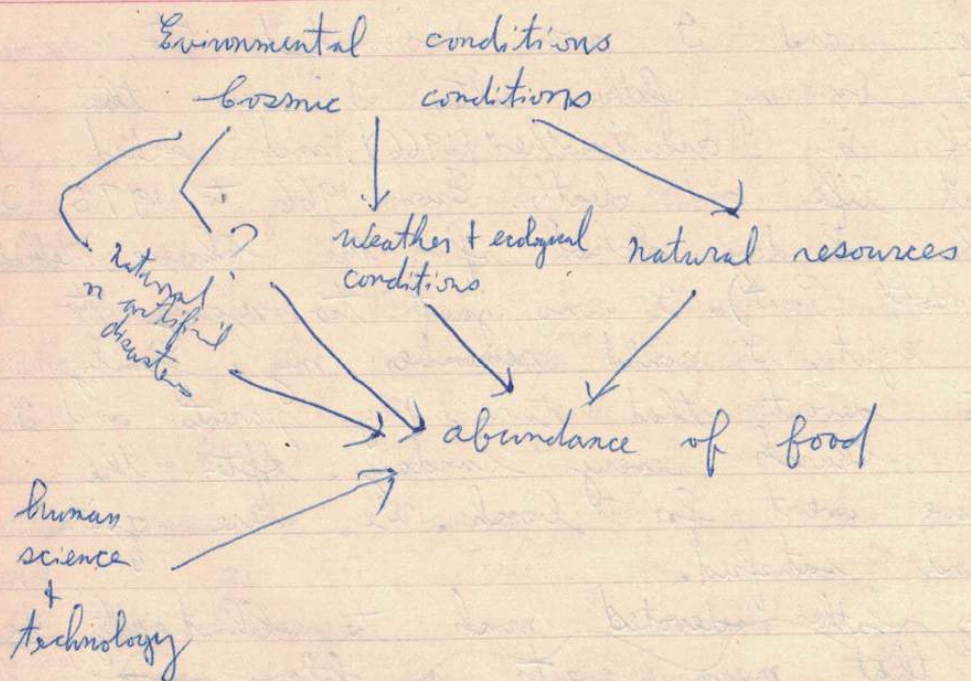

My story began when I was four years old. I can remember nothing before four. By then, I lived in Kowloon and was admitted to a Protestant kindergarten. I shunned myself from teachers and patrons. They managed to coax me and succeeded to be acquainted with me. Yet, when I grew accustomed to them, they all went away and were replaced by another group of teachers. I cried and cried and they tried to please me with all kinds of toys. They just couldn't help. From that day on, I refused to go to school. Well, my first year in kindergarten was a fleeting abortion. I stayed at home with my parents and my grandmother. I played with other boys living near to my flat. My father used to take me for a walk after dinner on an islet nearby. By five, I moved to Quarry Bay on Hong Kong Island. I entered another kindergarten called Faith and ~~Love~~ ^{Love} Kindergarten. I eschewed from my classmates and teachers. I was shy and did not like to play or mix with other classmates. Moreover I was too shy to ask to go to toilet. As a result, the ground of the campus was covered with my urine. After graduating from kindergarten, I was admitted to Chinese Methodist Primary School (North Point) in which I gained academic superiority. I became acquainted with several classmates in P.1. Among them was Lam Ching Fung with whom I remained friend until 1976. During that year, I was punished for I hit a girl's head with a water-bottle. I was hit on the palm once with a long ruler. I got kidney inflammation in P.2 and could merely prepare for the final examination in time. My grandmother died that year and I was converted to Christianity by my father after I saw the ashes of my grandmother (1966) and asked him about life and death. From 1966 to 1975, I joined the Sunday School of the Chinese Methodist Church (North Point). I was just too young to think at eight. I could remember my family was quite devout that time. My parents and I went to Church every Sunday. After the service, we went for lunch. We were quite happy and satisfied.

~~My father devoted much to Christianity. He believed that many events in life were~~

My father devotes much to Christianity. He believes that many events in life are fatalistic and are determined by God. He is satisfied with the present conditions and does not seek to expand. When I was rejected by Stanford in 1977, he said that it was God's plan. I was furious when I heard this and damned God in his presence.
